2 The Hon Sir Michael Barnett, P, Kt:

3           This is an appeal against sentence. In this case
4 the appellant was convicted in February of 2017 for a term of 5 five years' imprisonment for possession of a firearm and for 6 possession of dangerous drugs. The five-year sentence was to 7 run from the date of conviction. However, the appellant had 8 spent a year on remand, and that one-year remand was not taken 9 into account by the magistrate when the magistrate imposed the 10 five-year sentence.

11           It is settled law that the period of remand should 12 be taken into account when determining the sentence, and the 13 fact that that was not done justifies the court interfering 14 with the five-year sentence that has been imposed.

15           In the circumstances, the appeal is allowed. The 16 five years will have commenced from 16th February, 2016, which 17 would mean that the appellant should be released on 18 16th February, 2021.
